Introduction

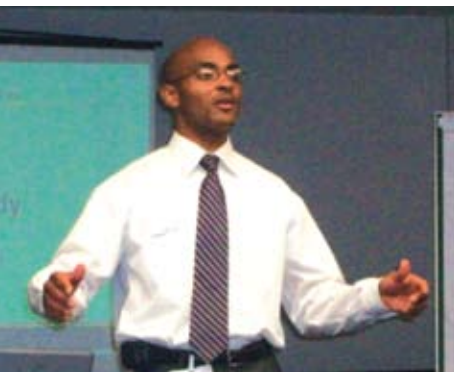

Can I Learn to Build a Better Team?

Teamwork. Why do some teams struggle to survive while others easily excel?

Today's work environment takes a heavy toll on individuals and on the teams on which they work. Efforts to increase productivity routinely push team members outside of defined job descriptions and beyond personal comfort levels. The drive for efficiency require today's managers and supervisors to do more with less. While workloads and standards of quality rise, fewer resources and fewer staff are available to meet the challenge. Declining job stability and higher employee turnover place additional strain on teams as managers and team members must adjust to growing demands.

How can today's teams overcome the challenges of the modern workplace to perform with excellence?

Based on the proven work of best-selling author, speaker, and entrepreneur Dr. John C.
